Call for Papers

International Accounting Standards Board Research Forum
Brussels, Belgium

November, 28-29, 2017

In relation to the IASB® Research Forum, the Editors of Accounting in Europe (AinE) and European Accounting Review (EAR) invite submissions that can inform the activities of the International Accounting Standards Board (the Board). Some examples of topics that might be addressed are:

- Accounting issues, including but not limited to issues that the Board will address in any of its standard-setting and research projects;
- Issues related to the Board’s post-implementation reviews of standards.
- The needs of users of financial reporting, and how they use the information given in financial reports.
- Disclosure in increasingly complex business environments;
- Translation and the effect of cultural differences; and
- What makes an accounting standard a good accounting standard?

For further information, visit the Board’s Research Centre page: http://www.ifrs.org/IFRS-Research/Research-opportunities/Pages/Home.aspx

Following AinE and EAR policy of openness and flexibility regarding methodologies and styles of conducting research, papers using field study methods (including case study research), history, experimentation, surveys, empirical-archival methods and analytical approaches (including both mathematical modeling and qualitative reasoning), will be considered.

Authors of selected papers entered into the review process will be invited to present their work at the IASB Research Forum, planned to be held on November 28, 2017 in Brussels, Belgium. The IASB Research Forum will be followed on November 29, 2017 by discussions of issues chosen by the Board. Authors of selected papers are strongly recommended to attend the second day of discussions.

Submission process

Authors should send an extended abstract (one or two pages maximum) by email to both Editors Paul André for Accounting in Europe (paul.andre@unil.ch) and Hervé Stolowy for European Accounting Review (stolowy@hec.fr).
Both Editors will make a first screening of the abstracts and will suggest one journal to the authors. This suggestion will be based on the journals’ aims and scope.

After this first step, authors will officially submit their papers to the suggested journal using the online submission system (http://mc.manuscriptcentral.com/raie for Accounting in Europe or http://mc.manuscriptcentral.com/rear for European Accounting Review).

Each paper will be evaluated following the usual review process.

Papers accepted for the conference are generally published in AinE or EAR. However, the ultimate disposition of each manuscript will be determined through the journals’ normal review process.
