International Accounting Conference of the Accounting Academicians’ Research and Collaboration Foundation (AARCF) is held annually and the hosting institution rotates between various Turkish Universities. The host of the 2014 Conference is Sabanci University, a modern private university located on the Asian side of Istanbul.

The theme for the 2014 Conference is “Interdisciplinary Aspects of Accounting Research”. Interdisciplinary accounting research has received a major boost in recent years. The Conference aims to bring together accounting researchers with broad social science interests and to raise issues regarding the way accounting affects, and is affected by social, political and economic environments and other disciplines.

The Conference is dedicated to the advancement of accounting theory and practice. It provides a platform to discuss the interaction between accounting and other disciplines. Contemporary research directions in accounting show a trend toward convergence of different and complementary approaches, seeking synergy among different research methods and disciplines. Accounting research can benefit from integration with advances in economic, organizational, and social theories. The Conference sessions and papers will critique contemporary theory and practice, examine historical and interdisciplinary dimensions of accounting research, debate policy alternatives, and explore new perspectives and changes in the field. Included in the program are plenary and concurrent sessions and research paper presentations on selected themes and issues, enhanced by keynote speakers.

Istanbul, historically also known as Byzantium and Constantinople, is the largest city in Turkey and one of the largest cities in the world, with a population of more than 17 million. With her natural beauties and rich history, Istanbul, is one of the most popular tourist destinations of the world. The city has a lot of historical structures from the Byzantium and Ottoman periods; it is also a mega city, as well as the cultural and financial center of Turkey. Istanbul is located along the Bosphorus and encompasses the natural harbor known as the Golden Horn, in the northwest of the country. Istanbul extends both on the European and on the Asian sides of the Bosphorus, and is thereby the only metropolis in the world that is situated on two continents. Throughout its long history, it has been a contact point of many civilizations and cultures. In this respect, Istanbul is indeed the perfect location to host a conference on interdisciplinary aspects of accounting research.

Come to the charming city of Istanbul!
